Raid on Highway Trust Fund Killed; 'Of Thee I Sing'

I was in Little Rock Tuesday for a tax conference with our auditor, and between breaks in the meeting I had nothing to do but read Tuesday's Arkansas Gazette. The Gazette and The Star seldom have nice words to say about each other, but Tuesday's edition carried a column which added stature to the morning state paper.

It was the daily business column written by Leland DuVall who has a wide reputation for accuracy and clarity. He discussed the attempted raid on the Highway Trust Fund to divert federal gas tax money from the Interstate System to rail and bus systems for big city commuters.

As you know, I have been blasting away at this steal for the last week—and the steal was averted only when Congress adjourned without voting funds for either roads or rails and buses.

DuVall reports:

"The tragedy of the blunder is that more than $6 billion in federal funds—collected directly from motorists and earmarked for road construction—are available and, in truth, should have been allocated. The money has been called "surplus," but the description is a little misleading. It was collected through taxes on motorists and the only reason the extra amount is still in the Trust Fund is that it has not been sent back to the states where, according to the law, it should have been spent."

Following this summary DuVall raises the question: Did President Nixon, who previously went on record as favoring the raid on the Trust Fund, have a hand in killing it?

DuVall may have something. Here's the crux of his report:

"The compromise measure was approved in the Senate and was brought up in the House at a late hour. Rep. John Myers (Rep., Ind.) then called for a quorum and killed the measure when the necessary number of House members could not be found. (Persons familiar with the workings of Congress know that a quorum call late in a session almost always produce an inadequate number of bodies.)

"There are those who say that Myers was acting for the administration when he poleaxed the compromise with his quorum call. President Nixon and key members of his administration are on record as favoring use of money from the Trust Fund for non-highway purposes."

I'll go along with DuVall's report. It is logical to suppose that Nixon was strong-armed by some advisers to endorse the Trust Fund raid as a vote-getting measure in the big cities—but he later decided it was wiser to abandon a steal-out which would have infuriated taxpaying motorists all over the nation.

The billions of dollars escrowed in the Trust Fund will always be a temptation to politicians hard pressed by big city demands—but such a double-cross would kill what little faith Americans still have in Government.

Watching the TV special "Of Thee I Sing" on the CBS network Tuesday night I thought of an old trunk that's stored in the attic over my garage. In that trunk are old Broadway playbills, and one of them is "Of Thee I Sing" which I saw in the original in 1931.

Nostalgia is prone to lead one to say a film repeat is never quite as good as the original on stage. But I was pleasantly surprised Tuesday night to discover that the film version had the same old sting and bounce that won the Pulitzer prize for the Broadway production 41 years ago.

It's a musical satire, George S. Kaufman's play and George and Ira Gershwin's music—pure magic. The stumblebum role of Alexander Throttlebottom, candidate for vice-president, was played by Jack Gilford. He wasn't quite up to the performance of the late Victor Moore in the stage production—but that would take some doing.

Revenue to go back to the people

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers said Tuesday that the great surplus in state revenues will be given back to the people in the form of more State Troopers to patrol the highways and better paid school teachers.

Bumpers made the remark after being asked by state Rep. W. H. Thompson of Marked Tree whether the administration had given any thought to asking next year's legislature to reduce taxes.

"Has there been any thought given to giving it back?" Thompson asked.

Bumpers explaind that most of the record surplus could be attributed to Arkansas' economic growth and not to the increased taxes approved by the 1971 General Assembly.

The governor referred to a study showing that 34 per cent of the increase in state revenues in the last fiscal year was a result of the tax increases.

He said the administration was working on various proposals to provide income tax relief to families of four or less with incomes of $5,000 or less.

Bumpers said statistics indicated that revenue collected form the lowest income returns paid little more than the administrative costs of handling.

"We can save these taxpayers some money, the expense of having to file a return, and simultaneously reduce our own administrative expense," Bumpers said.

He outlined for the Arkansas Legislative Council a proposal to relieve the State Police of motor vehicle inspection and driver licensing programs and transfer them to the Department of Finance and Administration.

Bumpers said this would free 60 troopers for highway patrol duty as well as reduce administrative costs from about $1 million annually to about $450,000.

Peace signals sent out from Vietnam, U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu's tough-sounding speech and cautious words from the White House are sending out a similar signal about prospects for a halt to the Vietnam fighting.

It is: Headway has been made in secret negotiations but more is needed before there can be a firm deal to end the war. Peace could come soon, but it is not right around the corner.

Thieu's two-hour address Tuesday included what might be expected from a South Vietnamese president broadcasting to a home audience amidst a war, right after a conference with a peace-seeking ally and enemy-aided speculation that he is being pressured to step down.

He reaffirmed his opposition to a communist takeover of South Vietnam, denounced enemy proposals for a three-segment coalition government, demanded that North Vietnamese forces go home, and declared no one can sign a cease-fire agreement without Saigon's consent.

Thieu's public stand underlined the difficulties for presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, shuttling from sessions in Paris to those in Saigon in quest of a deal acceptable to all.

It also pointed to the possibility of at least a military standdown while major political issues remain up for negotiation.

A cease-fire, Thieu said, "may take place before the U.S. presidential election" Nov. 7 or just a few months thereafter. "The final decision must be reached when we and the communists decide to sit down together."

The White House version Tuesday, following Kissinger's return from Saigon, was that there has "been some progress" toward a negotiated Vietnam peace. Officials privately counseled against expecting a war-ending agreement by election day or shortly thereafter.

VN bombing is reduced again

SAIGON (AP) — The United States reduced its fighter-bomber strikes against North Vietnam again Tuesday and confined them to the southern panhandle below the 20th parallel in a sort of a partial bombing halt aimed at improving the atmosphere for peace negotiations, informed sources said today.

The Air Force's big B52 bombers resumed attacks on supply caches in the panhandle after a 24-hour diversion to targets in South Vietnam. But the U.S. Command said the smaller fighter-bombers flew only about 100 strikes, all below the 20th parallel, which is 75 miles south of Hanoi.

The curtailment of the air war began Sunday, when the total of fighter-bomber strikes dropped from an average of 250-300 to about 140, and about 120 were flown on Monday.

Although the northeast monsoons always reduce the air attack on the North at this time of year, informed sources say orders from President Nixon have curtailed it even more. It is believed that Nixon does not want to acknowledge the curtailment publicly because that would tend to inhibit his freedom to resume heavy strikes on the Hanoi-Haiphong area should the current peace negotiations collapse.

Meanwhile, the second fatal accident aboard a U.S. navy ship off the coast of Vietnam in less than a month killed four Americans Tuesday night, injured 22 and wrecked nine jet fighter-bombers worth $30 million. Another sailor was reported missing, presumably overboard.

On the South Vietnamese battlefields, Communist forces rained scores of rockets into the Da Nang air base, an adjoining village, a provincial capital 15 miles south of Da Nang and a district town 40 miles northwest of Saigon. An American civilian and 26 South Vietnamese were killed, and two Americans and 109 Vietnamese were wounded.

The naval accident occurred aboard the carrier Midway.

Hanoi blasts Nixon

HONG KONG (AP) — Hanoi Radio accused President Nixon today of pretending to seek peace while using President Nguyen Van Thieu to block a settlement.

The broadcast apparently was prompted by Thieu's refusal in a speech Tuesday to agree to a coalition government and to join in a cease-fire while North Vietnamese troops remain in South Vietnam.

Radio Hanoi said the Nixon administration was using "all manner of deceitful maneuvers and measures to create a false veil of peace, perfidiously trying for political purposes to create the impression that he is actively pursuing the path of negotiations to end the Vietnam War.

Bumpers puts $ tag on projects

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers applied a price tag Tuesday to the capital improvement and special projects program he will present to the 1973 General Assembly.

The price for the 11-item program, which would be financed from a projected state revenue surplus of $91.2 million, was $88.8 million.

This also was the first time the governor had given a figure on projection of the surplus. He said the projection, which includes funds from the federal revenue-sharing act, was conservative and subject to adjustment after another two months of revenue-collection experience.

In outlining his program, which contained no surprises, before the Arkansas Legislative Council, Bumpers said a reason the projection was conservative was that it was based on official expectations of "a dramatic leveling off" of record revenue collections.

Bumpers told the council, which began budget hearings in preparation for the legislative session, that state funds available for regular operations of state agencies and institutions would be up by $85.3 million for the first year of the biennium beginning next July 1.

The governor said state agency requests for additional operating funds for the year would total about $125 million and would require substantial cutting. Bumpers said he could not justify many of the requests.

Bugging case moves closer to Nixon, Haldeman is implicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern said today the reported involvement of White House aide H. R. Haldeman in Republican political sabotage and espionage "places the whole ugly mess...right squarely in the lap of Richard Nixon."

McGovern told a breakfast of labor supporters in Milwaukee that the report, published by the Washington Post, should be alarming to all Americans.

"...That issue alone is enough to retire Mr. Nixon and Mr. Agnew from the White House," he said.

McGovern, quoting the Post, said the accounts "of political espionage, of political sabotage, of corruption of all kinds of our political process, now traces right back to H. R. Haldeman in the White House."

"Now," McGovern said, "this places the whole ugly mess of corruption, of espionage, of sabotage, of wiretapping, right squarely in the lap of Richard Nixon," McGovern said.

The Post said Haldeman was one of five close Nixon associates who controlled a secret campaign spying and sabotage fund.

The Post said it based the report on information from federal investigators and accounts of sworn testimony given to a grand jury investigating the June 17 break-in at Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate building.

The newspaper said it has been told that Haldeman, a Nixon aide for 16 years, and the four others authorized to make payments from the secret fund were identified in grand jury testimony by Hugh W. Sloan Jr., who quit as treasurer of the Nixon campaign organization shortly after the Watergate break-in.

Deputy White House press secretary Gerald L. Warren declined comment on the Post report. He referred newsmen to a White House statement issued to the Post, saying that "the reference to Bob Haldeman is untrue."

The sabotage fund, according to the Post, was a cache of as much as $700,000 held in Stans' office safe.

The Post said it has learned that all five men have been questioned by the FBI about disbursements from the fund.

Sloan, the ex-treasurer of the campaign, has told the jury that one received money from the fund was G. Gordon Liddy, the Post said. Liddy is one of seven men under indictment in connection with the Watergate break-in, the incident which set off the disclosures of an alleged GOP sabotage ring.

Searching for votes

Dr. Wayne Babbitt, at left, Republican candidate for the Senate seat held by John L. McClellan, talked to Larry Williams of Hope during a swing through Hempstead County Tuesday. Babbitt told the Star he has been encouraged by his "grassroots support" in the campaign, and said that his campaign for the Senate "is really getting off the ground." Acknowledging he was in McClellan territory, he said, "I've always done my best and I can't do my best without trying to meet everybody I can."

Behind every cloud. . .

Political humor alive and well

WASHINGTON (AP) — There was the time when Democratic vice-presidential nominee Sargent Shriver thought he was driving home his point about the high cost of living by quoting the price of bacon—until he learned he was talking to the rabbi's wife.

And the time Vice President Spiro T. Agnew made a speech praising a Republican senatorial candidate, then couldn't remember the man's name at the crucial moment of introduction.

Or when a local Democrat was trying his best to give George McGovern a nice introduction but, memory failing him, he presented the Democratic presidential candidate as George Washington.

And those inevitable one-liners from the stump as politicians try to match Bob Hope or Morey Amsterdam.

Like Shriver fiddling with the microphone and quipping: "You know, we Democrats don't often get to talk into microphones you can see."

Or Agnew cutting at McGovern's proposed defense-spending cuts by telling an Oklahoma City crowd that cowboys had run the Democrat out of town for telling them they were overarmed with six-shooters and "three-shooters" would do as well.

These are the comic moments of a political campaign, which often aren't reported in the crush of heavy issues.

Richard Nixon, who told a lot of jokes in 1968, is less-given to campaign clowning as President. Agnew, also working on a new image, has dropped the glittering alliteration which helped make him famous, but not his quips.

When the candidates run out of something funny to say, others in the traveling entourage find a chuckle somewhere.

Take for example the time Agnew was playing golf with Frank Sinatra and Jack Benny. Agnew, whose golf drives are notorious, was having a good day, and Benny couldn't find the fairway. Finally, Agnew beamed a little too much, and Benny shamed him with: "Look, at my age I'm happy if I just make the tee."

When the politicians get funny on purpose, the comic lines usually are pointed to campaign issues.

There's a favorite McGovern theme that Nixon won't come out and campaign. When Nixon fans show up to heckle a McGovern rally, McGovern tells the crowd to let it pass. "This is as close as they'll ever get to a presidential campaign. It's obvious they're never going to see their candidate."

Some routines get pretty elaborate, like the one that started when Shriver compared the Republicans to a football squad with "Tricky Dicky at quarterback dancing around out there" behind a screen of blockers.

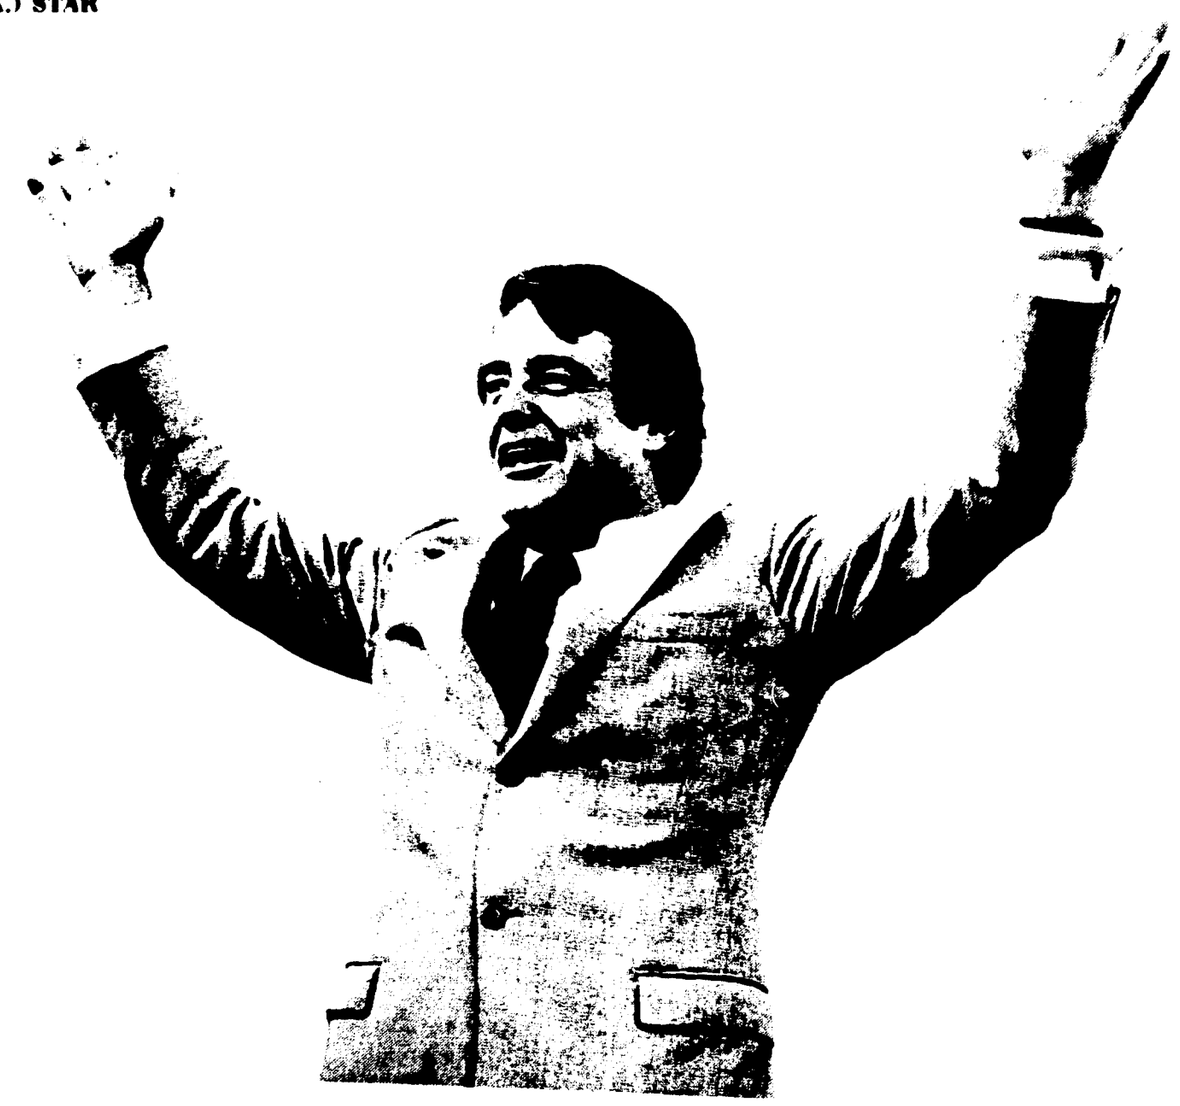

The Democrats thought it was a good line and distributed recordings to radio stations. The Republicans liked it too, and started putting it out themselves.

The GOP also found some real live football players to say they were offended by Shriver's remarks, but McGovern picked up the football analogy and carried it further.

"He has Spiro Agnew as offensive right end," McGovern said of Nixon's team. "He has Bob Dole as his kicking specialist. He has his chief fund-raiser, Maurice Stans, as the out-of-bounds receiver. John Mitchell, with Martha looking over his shoulder, is the up-tight end. John Connally is a roving back, and Mel Laird's specialty, I regret to say, is throwing the long bomb."

Agnew likes to jab at Shriver's affluent background. He once ascribed to Shriver this remark: "My father knows poverty first-hand. He had 10 mouths to feed—me, my mother and 10 polo ponies."

Several days later, when an Agnew staff member was asked the purpose of a particular staff meeting, he replied, "We're giving the vice president a crash course in math, like how to count polo ponies."

Price tag --

From the additional operating funds, he said he would like to spend $4.2 million to begin a statewide public kindergarten program, $2.4 million to implement a statewide community junior college program and $3 million to increase state employe salaries. He discussed salary increases of 6 per cent.

Bumpers said he had not completed his review of requests for capital improvement funds from the surplus and would make additions to his own recommendations later.

Earlier in the day, it was disclosed that the individual state agency requests for surplus funds totaled $92,787,113. The requests duplicated some of Bumpers' own proposals but left others out.

Renovation and expansion of the Uniersity of Arkansas Medical Center at Little Rock was the major single capital project recommended by Bumpers. He proposed a state expenditure of $15 million, which would be matched with federal funds.

Bumpers said he wanted some "guaranteed assurance" from the center that it intends to use the appropriation to help solve rural health problems.

There has been criticism of the Medical Center that it is oriented toward turning out specialists and not family doctors. A movement is under way for creation of a second medical school to train doctors who would serve in rural areas.

The governor's recommendations also included $10 million for the acquisition of easements to scenic wilderness and wetland areas or outright purchase of the land. He also proposed spending $10 million for a state office buildling, which he suggested could house a state library, a state archieves and the state Employment Security Division, among others.

Bumpers said the money could be used to pay increased operating costs of expanded programs if revenues fall short of the amount needed and provide a "cushion" if federal funds are discontinued on a program the state feels should be continued.

He said that while the state was in excellent financial shape, "the real test is whether or not we have the vision, the foresight, the common sense to keep our fiscal affairs in this condition."

Bryant not a 'librarian', Climer claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has ruled out further disciplinary action against Maj. Gen. John D. Lavelle, saying the general's firing as commander of the 7th Air Force was punishment enough for last winter's unauthorized bombing of North Vietnam.

Court-martial charges lodged against Lavelle by a junior officer were dismissed Tuesday by Secretary of the Air Force Robert Charles Seamans Jr.

The Air Force said Seamans acted "after thorough investigation and review of all facts and material in connection with the matter."

But the officer who brought the charges, 1st Lt. Delbert R. Terrill Jr., called the dismissal "a slap in the face to every soldier who has ever worn the American uniform."

"The whole handling of this affair has been an indictment against the military ethic," said Terrill, an Air Force Academy graduate from Charlevoix, Mich. "There is no respect down the chain of command. There is no attention to duty."

In a brief statement, the Air Force said Lavelle's relief from command in April "has served the interests of discipline by its punitive impact and by placing commanders on notice that the Air Force does not and will not condone the manner in which Gen. Lavelle discharged his duties."

The Air Force said it "plans no further action in this case."

Although this, in effect, closed the legal books in the Lavelle case, questions over civilian control of the military and the armed forces disability-retirement system remain unresolved in the view of some congressmen.

Terrill filed the charge in June after the Air Force had announced that it planned no further disciplinary action against the general for 28 unauthorized bombing strikes by his planes between November 1971 and last March.

3 minor fires are reported

The Hope Fire Department answered a total of three minor calls late yesterday and early today, with small amount of damage and no injuries being reported.

At 9:30 p.m. yesterday (Tuesday), the department was called to extinguish a chimney fire at 320 N. McRae St. Vines growing in the chimney caught on fire, and no damage was reported.

An extension cord flared up at 8:30 this morning and caught a couch on fire in the residence at 604 Nancy St.; the department answered the call but only damage to the couch was reported.

A truck bed at the Bruner-Ivory Handle Co., caught on fire about 8:50 a.m. today, but only minor damage occured before the blaze was brought under control.

Sarge Shriver:

Breeziest thing in politics

By TOM TIEDE

WITH THE SHRIVER CAMPAIGN — (NEA) — R. Sargent Shriver may well be the breeziest thing in American politics since that 1967 poster of Gene McCarthy's unruly hair. Good old Sarge. Handsome, ebullient, urbane —yet, doggone it, also jes' plain folks, one of the boys, mud kickin', knee slappin', unbutton the shirt and gab, gab, gab. Whew. Likewise, has been dirty since anti-federalists called George Washington "that misfortunate nincompoop." Yet this time around, this 47th presidential election, the name calling has been so shrill that nincompoop, by comparison, would be a welcome compliment for any of the candidates.

George McGovern has compared Richard Nixon to Adolph Hitler: "Except for . . . the extermination of the Jewish people the American bombing of defenseless people in Indochina is the most barbaric act of modern man." Richard Nixon has indicated that George McGovern is some kind of a nut who would take away the nation's color TV's and give them to the welfare chiselers. Spiro Agnew has gotten in so many jabs they deserve no retelling.

And so it is, sadly, that R. Sargent Shriver, 56, hale fellow, former (and tireless) director of the Peace Corps, subscriber to the John F. Kennedy ideals of Justice For Everyman, running for office for the first time, coming just out of Camelot as it were, with the big heart hanging there on his sleeve, is just as full of false piety, just as brimming with feigned indignities, just as capable of gutter-rolling as the rest.

Some examples:

In answer to a newsman's question about former President Johnson's role in the Vietnam war, Shriver brushed the remark aside by saying that Richard Nixon is now "the world's greatest warmaker." In West Virginia, talking with black-lung coal miners, Shriver said they "have no friend in the White House." Talking with other workers in other states, the vice-presidential candidate insists Richard Nixon "has done more to increase the cost of welfare than any other president in contemporary history." He has blamed the President, at one time or another, for everything from high unemployment in Portland, Me., to oil slicks along the East Coast. Once, when referring to Nixon's maturation from a devote anti-Communist to a Peking traveler, Shriver said the President was "like a reformed drunk." Worst of all, perhaps, has been the candidate's charge, on two occasions according to his press secretary, that the man presently in the White House is a "mass murderer" of men, women and children throughout Southeast Asia.

The blasts are pure hyperbole. Or worse. And according to students of politics, they are probably counter-productive. Sam Archibald, of the Fair Campaign Practices Committee in Washington, says the evidence indicates the public wants calm deliberation of political issues, not evangelistic demogoguery: "We've made several studies of campaign rhetoric and we've found conclusively that the shrill, vehement, bitter outbursts usually backfire." Larry Wacker, an Iowa farmer agrees: "I don't like these people criticizing each other so. Like they all hate each other. When I see 'em ranting on the TV I just turn it off. I don't like TV much anymore anyway."

And so. Is that what's happening across the country? Are Americans turning Sargent Shriver off? His strategists and publicists don't think so, obviously. His race began with an attack ("Nixon blew a chance at peace when he first took office") and has, if anything, increased in this offensive-accusatory pitch. "We've got to get Nixon out of his Palace," says a Shriver aide.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The pangolin or scaly anteater is a toothless mammal found in Asia and Africa. It feeds on ants and termites. As a protection against these insects it has no external ears, thick eyelids and can close its nostrils, The World Almanac says. When attacked, it rolls into a ball, and some varieties climb about trees with the aid of their long, prehensile tail.

Vanilla Helps Cut Pesty Paint Fumes

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Mrs. R. G. whose family members have hay fever and allergies so that paint fumes bother them. First and always, she should use a latex base paint. It has fewer fumes than an oil base one. A little vanilla can be added to the latex base paint and even a dish of onions can be put in the room being painted to cut the fumes. Always paint with the doors and windows open for plenty of ventilation. To prevent mildew from forming on the walls is a real problem. She could use a waterproof paint. When mildew starts to form wipe it off with a dry cloth and then spray with a disinfectant. In humid weather I often put some moth crystals around and they seem to help.—MARIAN

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Mrs. R. G. that a home magazine once published a good method for killing mildew inside and out. Scrub the surface with a solution of three parts of a household trisodium phosphate cleaner, one part strong detergent, two parts chlorine bleach and three parts warm water. Rinse well.—JUANITA

DEAR GIRLS — Juanita's suggestion also is one recommended by some paint companies. As to the other part of Mrs. R. G.'s question, a latex paint has very little odor but the fumes are still there with any paint or after the use of an odor killer. The addition of vanilla will not affect the paint and I personally think vanilla is a good odor remover. A vanilla candle is even stronger than is the liquid and most penetrating. — POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Does anyone know how to clean wedding cake ornaments? I keep mine under a glass dome but still the lace is turning yellow and appears dirty.—MRS. L.W.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the manufacturers of support hose. I wear them on doctor's orders and find the seam in the reinforced section of the toe has a clumsy place at each side — one falls right over the bunion bone and the other smack on top of the little toe in just the perfect place to make a beautiful corn. It seems that section could be made smaller, the seam less clumsy or something—J. T.

DEAR POLLY — I have a solution for wives whose husbands snore and vice versa. Most snoring is done when a person is lying on his back. My husband is a tall, large man and it was impossible for me to turn him on his side when he was sound asleep. Now I simply reach over, grab the end of the pillow and SLOWLY pull it towards me one or two inches and this turns his head to one side and the snoring stops. Occasionally this movement will disturb the snorer enough that he will voluntarily turn to one side or the other. Either way has worked every time for me.—JOANN

Brisket is a double-duty dish

By AILEEN CLAIRE

NEA Food Editor

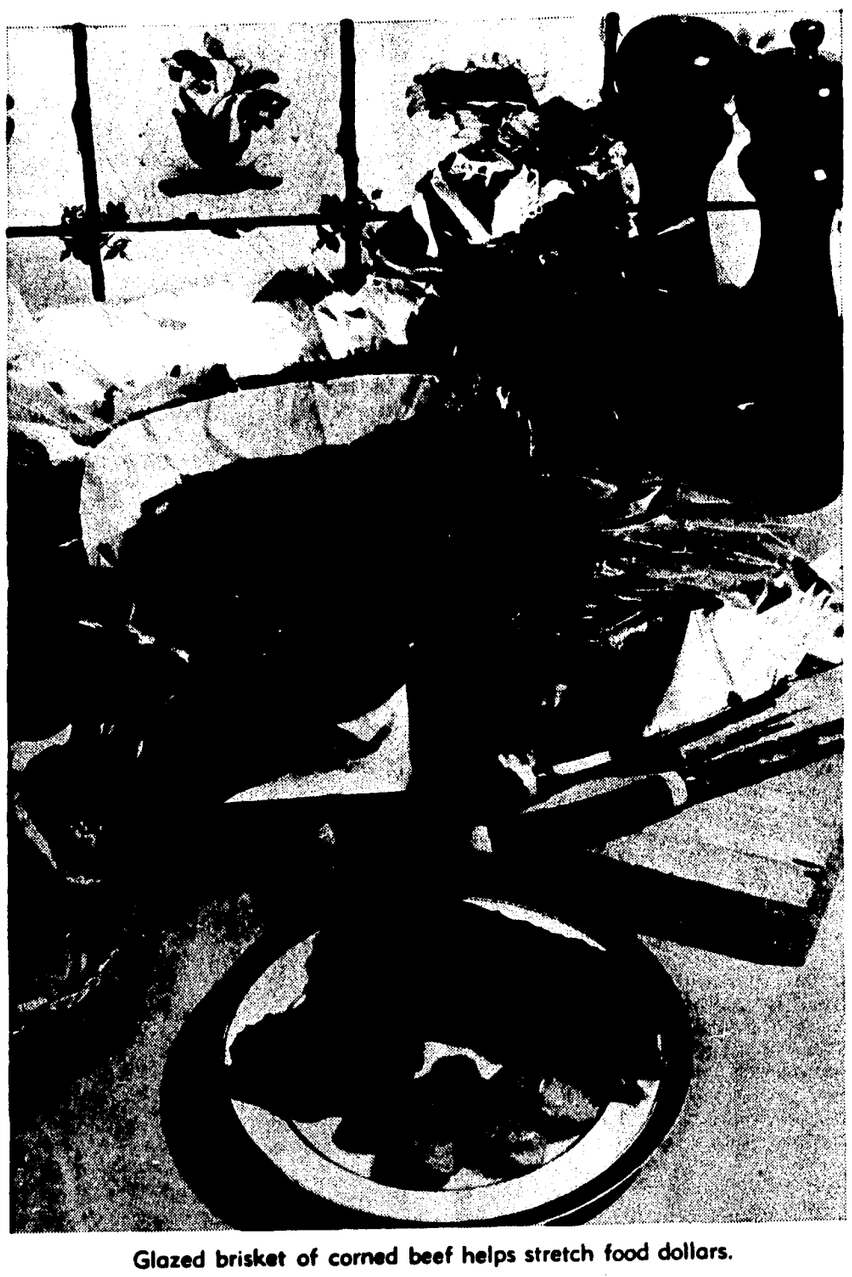

Stretching meat dishes while pleasing the taste buds is possible. One way is to cook up a lean brisket of corned beef. And you may want to try it in a see-through cooking wrap. Such a cut serves as the basis for a family meal or one with several friends. The leftovers make excellent cold sandwiches for those who brown-bag it (take their lunches) to work or to school. Those who are dieting will find approximately 316 calories in a three-ounce or diet serving. With this serve low-calorie carrots and broccoli and possibly a salad with lemon juice or a dash of vinegar rather than a high calorie dressing.

GLAZED BRISKET OF CORNED BEEF

3½ pound corned beef brisket
½ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon mustard
¼ cup orange marmalade
1 onion, peeled and sliced
1 clove garlic, minced

Dust a tablespoon of flour on see-through wrap. Place corned beef, fat side up, on wrap. Combine brown sugar, mustard and marmalade and place on surface of meat. Place sliced onion and garlic around meat. Double fold see-through reveal wrap over corned beef and twist metalized foil edges tightly at either end. Place in baking pan at least 2½-inches deep. Pierce top of wrap several times with a fork. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 2 hours 15 minutes. Remove from oven and allow to stand 10 minutes before slicing. Makes 6 servings.

Duck with kraut, a change of taste

By AILEEN CLAIRE

NEA Food Editor

A roast duckling makes a change-of-pace entree from the chicken, cornish hen or turkey routine. A duckling on a platter with colorful garnishes such as grapes, parsley, crabapples or baby carrots and pearl onions certainly dresses up any dining table. For a change from the familiar duckling a l' orange, stuff the next duckling with sauerkraut. Since all duck tends to be fatty, always place duck on a rack in a shallow pan and prick it all over with a fork so the excess fat will drain off. Either quarter or halve the duckling with poultry shears to serve. Figure on half a filet of breast plus a drumstick or thigh for each person.

KRAUT STUFFED DUCKLING

3¼ cups drained sauerkraut
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon celery seed
Pepper to taste
1 tart apple, pared, cored and sliced
1 duckling (4 to 5 pounds)

Combine kraut, sugar, celery seed, pepper and apple slices. Stir well and stuff lightly into duck; truss. Reserve leftover stuffing. Prick duck all over with fork to allow excess fat to drain off. Place duck on rack in shallow pan. Roast in 425 degree oven for 15 minutes. Lower temperature to 350 degrees and roast leftover stuffing in covered casserole dish and bake. Serve with duck. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Chole spring look is soft and fluid

PARIS (AP) — Karl Lagerfeld's collection for Chloe opened the spring and summer ready-to-wear week here this morning. He describs his clothes as "archisimple and architunctional."

But they're either high fashion or high camp.

The Chloe look: If you have a few hundred dollars to throw away, you'll buy it. It is as soft and fluid as possible. Every fabric, from gabardine to flannel for day and silk to georgette for evening, is thin and fluttering.

The colors: white and ivory, mixed with navy or black, and a splash of shocking pink, jade and red.

There are still quite a few pants that nip in at the waist. They come wity loose Spencer jackets or printed silk shirt jackets.

But the "surprise" skirt is what the clothes-happy ladies will be snatching up. It falls to the ankle in silk, is pleated and loose, and is really pants. But only the wearer can tell for sure.

"It seems that wearing these skirts is an extraordinary sensation," said Lagerfeld.

For the street, the skirts come with long silk shirts or iwin jacquard sweaters in camel, apricot and cream. In bright pants, they go with long belted jackets with full sleeves. And they can make long dresses too.

For this winter, everything is tweed or plaid. But when the hot weather comes, it's going to be prints. Lagerfeld does his pop prints in red, green and royal blue on a black or white field.

The Carmen Miranda look — it's still alive and well in Paris — includes minibra dresses with hems over the brink of decency with a scarf tied around the waist. Long dresses come with bra tops and scarf shawls.

But the name that may someday be a household word — in fashionable households — is Rolland Chakkal.

His principle: to make everything too big, the better for you to look skinny in, my dear. For sports occasions, there are linen pants suits. You wear them crushed because linen is crushable.

Cakkal's prints, which go on cotton for day and voile for evening, are multicolored little squiggles.

His huge dresses are printed. They are gathered at the shoulder and waist and fall in folds all over and down to the floor. On the black cotton one, you roll up the sleeves. The gold dress, though, has slit sides and is as filmy as a nightgown.

And, for a real bedroom look, try the pale peach or lime dresses in pajama silk. If you don't stuff your hair into the matching little turban, you'll never have the courage to go out on the street. Especially since Chakkal's favorite shoes are satin spike-heeled mules.

The Sheet Story

NEW YORK (ED) — Provocative and appealing bed sheet styling has made for attractive and economic bedroom decoration. Today, most sheets are blends of polyester and cotton. The most frequent blend is 50% polyester/50% cotton. Sheets of 50/50 Fortrel polyester/cotton in either muslin or percale have a long wear-life. Shrinkage is low; abrasion resistance is high. They resist wrinkles in washing as well as in use.

The addition of a chemical treatment to the cotton component of the fabric, which is then heat set and made an integral component of the sheet results in improved wrinkle resistance. Depending on the manufacturer, they are termed "permanent press" or "durable press", meaning that after washing and drying as recommended on the care label, they will need no ironing.

Washing Instructions

1. Always remember to check the particular instructions on each package and label. The manufacturer is advising you of the best way to care for that product.
2. Two sheets per load is suggested, filling out with additional small items of same color or shade such as towels and pillow cases.
3. Machine wash in warm or hot water on permanent press cycle.
4. Follow the manufacturers' instruction on packages of detergent or bleach.
5. Tumble dry at medium setting, then remove immediately and fold.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

Can He Sue for Alimony?

Dear Helen:

I have a good job. My husband kept his job for exactly one month after we were married. He quit because "the boss was impossible." I believed his excuses about working conditions, vague illnesses, etc. through three jobs that ended almost before they began. For the last four years he hasn't even bothered looking for work. The doctor says he isn't sick.

Well, I'm tired of supporting a moocher and want a divorce, but he says the Equal Rights Amendment will be law before a contested divorce can go through, and he'll stick me for alimony, as well as division of the property (all of which I bought with my hard-earned money). He says a good lawyer can prove that I was the sole breadwinner, he is not able to support himself (having never held a job) and therefore deserves "payment" for giving me the best years of his life, so to speak.

Is this possible? —LONGING FOR SINGLE BLISS AT 30

Dear Longing:

You need a lawyer, not a columnist!

But your letter inspires a question: If the Equal Rights Amendment becomes law (considerably less than half the State legislatures have ratified it so far), will marriage contracts (with his-and-hers property and financial clauses) be far behind? Men might have stood still for divorce laws that often favored women, but liberated females won't let the door swing both ways for long. . .Not when legal "In Case of Divorce—" agreements can nail it shut. —H.

Dear Helen:

I usually admire your advice, but I think you gave the wife with the mother-in-law problem a bum steer. What makes you think that moving away will stop Mama's interfering and demands for attention? Haven't you heard of the telephone? She can make him feel just as guilty long distance.

My solution—and I oughta know—is to let the man solve the problem. Have him tell her politely but firmly that he can't call her every night. Set up a schedule of visitation and stick to it. If Mama shows when she's not invited, let him show her the door and make clear that while he still loves her, his first duty is to his wife.

Unless Mama is completely crackers, she'll come around. Most women who hang onto children are just scared of losing them. Display of strength will often prove that too tight a grip can choke off the relationship entirely. —BEEN THERE

Dear B.T.:

Right you are, but sometimes distance helps work up courage for that show of strength. A kowtowing son isn't likely to meet Mama at the door with, "Sorry, Ma, this isn't your visiting day." But apron strings stretched over a thousand miles, aren't as hard to break, nor do they transmit so many guilt feelings. —H.

Dear Helen:

When I read the many letters from girls who have mother-in-law troubles I wonder why they don't consider:

1. Their mothers-in-law must have done something right or they wouldn't have produced the wonderful guys who are now husbands. Why not knock off jealousy (or try to ignore it) and look for these good traits?
2. They've won! They've got "her" son — so keep him by being tolerant.
3. The Golden Rule. They should think, "We'll most likely be mothers-in-law some day. How would WE like to be treated? And act accordingly. —EUGENIA S.

(GOT A PROBLEM? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel—or both, in care of this newspaper, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

Follow the leader

'Mean Green' prepares for Hogs

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Coach Rod Rust of North Texas State is no Perry Mason but he has cracked one alibi for the showing of the Green's defense.

North Texas allowed an average of 36.4 points per game in its first five games and some suggested that the offense, guilty of 25 turnovers in four games, should shoulder much of the blame.

"The defense knows that if the offense gives up the ball at its own 20 and our opponent takes it in for a score the sportswriter will be sure to point out the turnover," Rust said in an interview. "That's just looking for an alibi for failure.

"What difference does it make if the other team moves the ball from their 20 to our 20," Rust said. "The point is they have a first and 10 on your 20. It doesn't make a heckuva lot of difference how it got there. We've done it both ways."

Rust said the Mean Green was a "little more intense" last week in a 7-6 loss to Memphis State—the sixth loss in a row.

North Texas doesn't figure to break into the win column Saturday night, taking on Arkansas at Little Rock.

"Contrary to what some people seem to hope, we won't come with our hats in our hands," rust said. "It's a big game for our kids and I'm delighted it's being played in Little Rock. I hope they have a big crowd. Our kids like that."

Arkansas played North Texas last year the week after beating Texas 31-7 and whipped the Mean Green 60-21. This year, the Razorbacks are coming off a 35-15 loss to Texas.

"I'm not sure it would be real pleasant to be a member of the Arkansas football team this week," Rust said. "The coaches and players are getting back down to the nature of the game. "I would assume that their motivation is to re-establish some values."

Rick Shaw quarterbacked the Eagles against Arkansas last year and kept things interesting in the first half, completing 14 passes for 240 yards and three touchdowns. Arkansas led 34-21 at the half.

Rust says Shaw's passing has been erratic this year. In fact, Phil Shotland, a junior like Shaw, had apparently won the starting job before the season began.

Shotland sprained an ankle in the first quarter of the season opener against Long Beach State and then was used in spot situations. About the time it appeared his ankle had healed, he sprained his wrist, bruised his hand and jammed his fingers on his throwing hand.

He replaced Shaw with 1:03 left in the Memphis State game, the ball on the NTS four and no timeouts left. He proceeded to complete three of six passes for 58 yards and move the Eagles to the Memphis State 38 where a long field goal try failed.

Rust would not say who would start against Arkansas, but admitted that Shotland was a more consistent passer than Shaw and that the Eagles "plan to throw quite a bit."

Charlie Johnson, a junior, and Chris Moncrief, a freshman, are expected to be the running backs. Johnson gained 96 yards on 22 carries last week and Rust said Moncrief did an excellent job blocking.

Rust said that he thought before the season started North Texas would have a "pretty good team."

"Over at Louisville we missed the first two receivers and then dropped two in the end zone, but I have a way of putting the bad things out of my mind," Rust said. "We told the players we're not going to give up on them and that we hoped they wouldn't give up on themselves."

Hogs working on defense

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles said the Razorbacks had a good practice Tuesday, particulsarly on defense.

Broyles said some of the younger players "really kept things up and we're quite pleased with their progress."

In continuing changes since the Texas game, fullback Scott Bull was moved to strong safety. He fills the vacancy left by John Moseley, who was switched to tailback.

Freshman defensive ends Doug Yoder and Ivan Jordan, sophomore linebackers Hal McAfee and Billy Burns, and sophomore offensive guard Terry Irwin have figured prominently in practice this week and some may start Saturday against North Texas State at Little Rock.

"Because of injuries, I believe some of them may start, but that's still undecided," Broyles said.

Pee Wee scores

Results of last night's action at Key Field had Spears Razorbacks downing The Gold 7 to 6. Theodis Palmer scored 1 touchdown for Spears while Jackson pushed across 6 points. In the second game Citizens outlasted First National 15 to 13. Jester scored 6 points for Citizens and Fuller led First National with 13.

Dist 7AA news

The first round State Class AA playoff on Nov. 10th apparently will pit the Magnolia Panthers (7AA) vs. either Warren or Hamburg (8AA) on the site of the 8AA winner.

Hamburg defeated Warren 7-0 in the second game of the season but Hamburg lost to Star City two weeks ago 20 to 14 so both the Lumberjacks and Lions have two more conference games.

Magnolia likewise has two more league games, Fairview this week and Ashdown next week, but is favored to win in both contest. One loss by Magnolia would not help second place Malvern as the Panthers defeated the Leopards.

Magnolia disposed of the Hope Bobcats last week 35 to 17, while Malvern defeated Arkadelphia 27-14; Crossett won over Fairview 21-7, and Camden edged Ashdown 10-7.

In other games this week Crossett plays at Ashdown and Camden goes to Hope in loop action. Malvern plays at Sheridan and Arkadelphia host HD Lakeside in non-league games.

Malvern's J.R. Ross, the individual rushing leader, continues to hold onto the individual scoring leadership by a single point over Arkadelphia's Mac Harris 87 to 86. Harris has 12 TD's and Ross 10TD's but Ross has more extra points.

Crossett's Win Purifoy is the passing leader with 67 completions in 118 attempts for 1,019 yards.

P. Bonds of Magnolia leads the PAT kickers with 26 and also is the top field goal kicker with three.

In team statistics Malvern leads in first downs; Crossett leads in passing with 1,019-yds.; Malvern leads in rushing with 1,000-yards; Magnolia in defense against the rush 648 yards in eight games; Ashdown in defense against the pass, 257 yards in eight games; Magnolia in team scoring with 223 points and defense against scoring allowing 58-points. Magnolia and Hope lead in pass interceptions with 17 each.

After this week only three conference games will remain: Ashdown at Magnolia, Camden at Malvern, and Arkadelphia at Fairview.

Top 3 get chance to do it again

NEW YORK (AP) — Missouri and Oregon, fresh from stunning upsets, and Oklahoma State, which pulled off one of its own four weeks ago, get a chance to do it again Saturday again three of the country's top seven college football teams.

—Missouri, which rebounded from a 62-0 whomping at the hands of Nebraska and shocked Notre Dame 30-26, is at home against seventh-ranked Colorado, which has been both an upset victim and victor, the latest a 20-14 triumph over second-ranked—at the time—Oklahoma.

—Oregon, which recovered from four consecutive setbacks, including such whoppers as 68-3 and 65-20, to upset Stanford 15-13 last weekend, entertains top-rated Southern California.

—Oklahoma State, conqueror of Colorado back on Sept. 30, visits Nebraska for a game that will decide the Big Eight leader since both teams have 2-0 conference records.

What does the future hold in store? Read on, but be forewarned that last week's score was a mediocre .678.

Colorado at Missouri—Logic says the Buffs will be looking back to Oklahoma or ahead to Nebraska. Missouri has already had its upset. Colorado.

Southern Cal at Oregon—Ducks' Dan Fouts undoubtedly will fill the air with footballs, but USC is eighth nationally in total defense. Trojans lost to Oregon last season and comparative Stanford scores (USC 30-21, Oregon 15-13) indicate it should be close again. But this corner says it'll just be another romp for ... Southern Cal.

Oklahoma State at Nebraska—Huskers have bounced back from their opening loss to UCLA by routing five straight opponents, the last three by a combined 167-0 score. Soph quarterback Dave Humm has Bob Devaney's passing attack up among the leaders. Nebraska.

Kansas State at Oklahoma—Sooners rolled up a record 711 yards on the ground last year in clobbering K-State 75-28 and they just might be mad enough to do it again after losing to Colorado. Oklahoma.

Washington State at UCLA—Cougars are a surprising 5-2 but the remainder of the schedule lists Southern Cal, Stanford and Washington after ... UCLA.

Texas at Rice—Longhorns passed 32 times against Oklahoma, only three times against Arkansas. Rice's Bruce Gadd throws a lot every game. Texas.

Penn State at West Virginia—"We're still not making the big play on defense," says Joe Paterno. "We're dropping passes and we're not coming up with the interceptions. And the kicking team hasn't come up with the big play for a long time." Poor Penn State. They're only 5-1 and haven't lost to the Mountaineers since 1955. Penn State.

Florida State at Auburn—Having been tested by the throwing arms of Louisiana State's Bert Jones and Georgia Tech's Eddie McAshan the last two weeks, Auburn now runs into Gary Huff, the Magic Dragon of ... Florida State.

Air Force at Arizona State—The only previous meeting turned into a wild 44-28 triumph last year for ... Arizona State.

Texas Tech at Southern Methodist—Tech ranks 10th in rushing but SMU leads the nation in rushing defense and has two fine runners of its own in Alvin Maxson and Wayne Morris. Hunch says the Mustangs might be looking ahead to Texas. Upset Special of the Week ... Texas Tech.

Delaware at Temple—"I don't think we're as good a football team as people say we are," says Coach Tubby Raymond of Delaware's defending College Division national champs. "We just inherited our rating. I think it's a residue from last year." Actually, the Blue Hens dropped from No. 1 to No. 2 a couple of weeks ago although they're still unbeaten. Their last loss was last year to ... Temple.

Dick Butkus Player of the Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Butkus, mixing daring brainwork with is noted football brawn, today was named National Football League defensive player of the week by The Associated Press for leading the Chicago Bears' 13-10 upset over the Minnesota Vikings Monday night.

The veteran linebacker not only intercepted a Fran Tarkenton pass, setting up the winning field goal, but called a fake punt and fake field goal that led to key Bear first downs.

"The Vikings have a great kick rush," said the 29-year-old Butkus. "I studied their films all week and then called the fake kick plays."

Chicago Coach Abe Gibron got a hand signal from Butkus before each fake and nodded to go ahead with the trickery.

Butkus' deeds—mental and physical—helped the Bears spill the reeling Vikings in the nationally televised game.

He swiped the Tarkenton pass at midfield and rumbled into Viking territory prior to Mac Percival's 29-yard field goal in the fourth quarter that turned out to be the winning margin.

Butkus was in on five tackles and also recovered a fumble but he seemed proudest of the fake kick calls.

—Army's senior outside end, Ed Francis of West Haven, Conn., caught 23 passes last season.

World mourns Robinson

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — A man of courage died Tuesday; the whole world mourns his passing.

Black or white, young or old, athlete, politician or plain old sports fan—all were saddened by the news that Jackie Robinson, 53, had died of heart disease.

President Nixon, who once called Robinson "the greatest athlete I ever saw," said in Washington, "His courage, his sense of brotherhood and his brilliance on the playing field brought a new human dimension—not only to the game of baseball, but to every area of American life where black and white people work side by side. His example will continue to inspire us for years to come."

"His entire life was courage," praised Bowie Kuhn, Commissioner of Baseball. "Courage as the black pioneer of the game, courage as a player, courage in the way he fought for what he believed, courage in the way he faced his final illness."

"I really hope the world will mourn the passing of a man, not just an athlete," said Joe Black, a teammate of Robinson on the Brooklyn Dodgers. "I don't want him to be a martyr—but I want people to know that they've lost a battler."

Jack Roosevelt Robinson was a man whose entire life was a battle, and a man who never gave in—not as a child, growing up in a fatherless home; not as a baseball player, where he broke the color barrier in 1947 by becoming the first black player in the major leagues; not after he retired from the sport, as he strove to accomplish something meaningful for blacks and whites alike, whether in business, sports, politics or civil rights, and not in the face of personal tragedy, whether it was the death of his son or his long, lingering illness.

Robinson, silver-haired and nearly blind, suffered an early morning attack at his home and was pronounced dead on arrival at Stamford Hospital at 7:10 a.m., EDT, Tuesday.

He had been plagued by ailments in recent years. He was felled by a heart seizure in 1968, and also was suffering from diabetes. He had lost his sight in one eye, and was rapidly going blind in the other eye.

When Robinson was invited to throw out the first ball for the second game of the 1972 World Series, he let it be known that if he was asked his opinions, he would not hide them.

And when he was presented with a plaque at home plate commemorating the 25th anniversary of his entrance into baseball, he said in his acceptance speech, "I am extremely proud and pleased, but I will be even more pleased the day I can look over at third base and see a black man as manager."

David Robinson, Jackie's 26year-old son, noted that his father was a "black man in America, and every black man is trying to break down racial barriers—in baseball and everywhere."

Robinson will best be remembered for that day in April, 1947 when he played left field for the Brooklyn Dodgers, breaking the ancient color barrier which had blotted the record of the national pastime.

It was called "the noble experiment," and the two key figures were Robinson, the athlete, and Branch Rickey, boss of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Rickey had hand-picked Robinson to be the pioneer, because he knew it would take more than just athletic skill for the experiment to be a success.

"They'll taunt you and goad you," Rickey told Robinson. "They'll do anything to make you react. They'll try to provoke a race riot in the ball park.

"Robinson, I'm looking for a ballplayer with guts enough not to react."

And Jackie was that ballplayer—because he was an extraordinary man.

Robinson was born Jan. 31, 1919 in the south Georgia farm town of Cairo. His father deserted the five children and Jackie's mother a year later, and the family moved to Pasadena, Calif.

Jackie always was a standout athlete, even on the sandlots of Pasadena. He was so talented, other kids used to buy him drinks and sandwiches just to be on his team.

"You might say," Robinson once quipped, "that I turned pro at a very early age."

Robinson was a star athlete at Pasadena Junior College, then became a standout in football, baseball and track at UCLA.

After playing semi-pro football briefly and then serving in the army, Robinson signed in 1945 with the Kansas City Monarchs, a team in the Negro baseball league. On Aug. 28, 1945 Rickey brought Robinson to New York to lay the groundwork for the experiment.

Robinson, as always, accepted the challenge. He signed to play for Montreal, Brooklyn's farm club in the International League, and promptly led the league in batting in 1946 with a .349 average.

Finally, on April 9, 1947, came the historic declaration: "Brooklyn announces the purchase of the contract of Jack Roosevelt Robinson from Montreal. Signed, Branch Rickey."

One week later, Robinson, No. 42, a black man, played left field for the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League.

"He was a great athlete, a trailblazer for all black people and a great spokesman for justice," said Vernon E. Jordan, executive director of the National Urban League. "His name will be remembered, and his accomplishments revered."

Robinson was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame in 1962, the first year he was eligible. After Robinson opened the door to the majors, many blacks walked through—including modern-day superstars Willie Mays, Frank Robinson, Bob Gibson and Hank Aaron.

Robinson is survived by his widow Rachel, daughter Sharon and son David. Another son, Jackie Jr., died in a car crash in June, 1971.

Robinson's funeral will be held at Riverside Church in New York Friday at 11 a.m .EDT.

Joe Black, a former pitcher with the Dodgers and a black man, described what Robinson meant to him at a recent testimonial for Jackie.

"I owe a lot to Jackie," he said. "I have a good job, a nice house. A lot of doors opened for me. If Jackie Robinson had failed, the doors would never have opened. When I look at my house, when I look at the grass around my house, I say, 'Thank God for Jackie Robinson.'"

Sparky Anderson NL's Manager of the year

NEW YORK (AP) — George "Sparky" Anderson, molder of the Cincinnati Reds, today was named Manager of the Year in the National league.

Anderson's Reds won their second pennant in three seasons and he beat Pittsburgh skipper Bill Virdon in an Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters for the Manager of the Year award.

The margin was 271-179 for Anderson, in balloting conducted prior to the National League playoffs and World Series. Montreal's Gene Mauch was a distant third with seven votes.

Cincinnati lost in seven games to Oakland in the World Series that ended Sunday. Anderson's team lost the 1970 Series to the Baltimore Orioles 4-1.

The Reds won the Western Division of the National League by 10½ games this season, while Virdon's Pirates breezed by 11 games in the East. Then, Cincinnati beat the Pirates 3-2 in the playoff for the pennant.

"It feels great although I know awards are won because the team did well," said the graying, 38-yer-old Anderson. "I really wanted this award. Tell everybody I appreciate it.

The former second baseman, who spent 10 of his 11 playing years in the minor leagues, was sitting in his office at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium when he heard the news.

Anderson opened mail, mostly from Reds' fans who said they were behind the team all the way despite the loss to the American League champions.

After a few seasons managing in the minors, Anderson was appointed as a coach by the San Diego Padres in 1969. A year later, when Cincinnati fired Dave Bristol, he was hired to manage the Reds.

He took them to the NL pennant that year, then lost the World Series to Baltimore. In 1971, Cincinnati finished fourth in the Western Division.

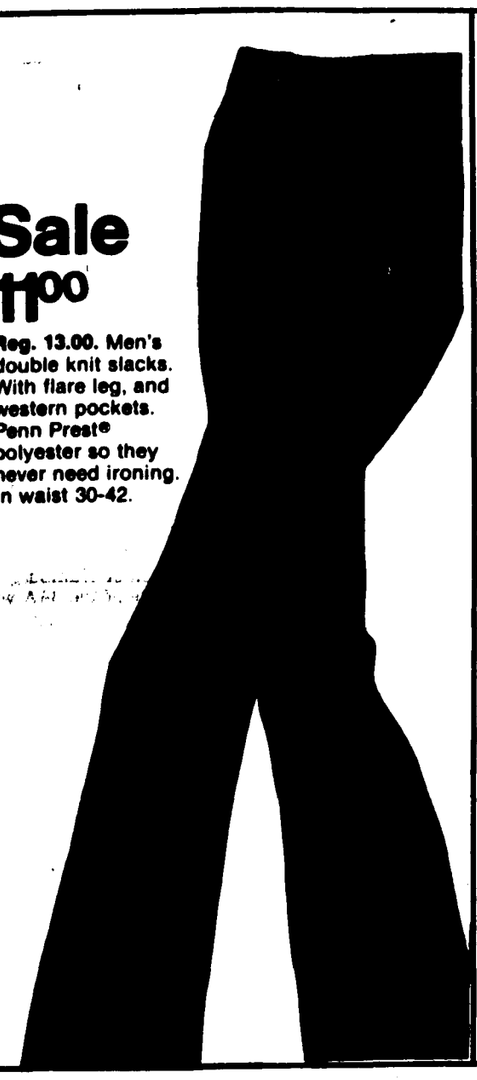

Then came 1972, and another Cincinnati pennant.

Other than Mauch, the also-rans included New York Mets Manager Yogi Berra with six votes; Walter Alston, the 1971 Manager of the Year from Los Angeles, four; Whitey Lockman of Chicago and Harry Walker, who was fired at midseason by Houston, two apiece.

Items from Spain

Mr. and Mrs. Haskell Jones display some of the many souvenirs they purchased during their recent tour of Spain. A moslem prayer rug, porcelain figurines, and a traditional Spanish fan are among the items they purchased.

Joneses return from Spain

Mr. and Mrs. Haskell Jones of radio station KXAR in Hope have returned from a recent tour of Spain where they toured several villages along the southern coast.

The Jones' traveled with a group of 175 other persons associated with the radio field. The seven day tour was sponsored by the Arkansas Radio Network. The group left by plane from Little Rock, made a stop in Maine, then crossed the Atlantic Ocean enroute to Spain.

The city of Malaga, an old harbor town, was one of the first stops of the tour. From Malaga the Jones' made short side trips by car to several small country villages and other points of interest along the coast.

Highlights of the trip included a visit and tour of the Casba and attending the traditional bull fight Jones said. "I had never seen a bull fight before," he said, "it was quite an experience." It was the first time for either of them to visit Spain. "I was most impressed with the general feeling of safety there," Mrs. Jones said. "Everywhere we went we saw patrolmen with the law enforcement offices and we never felt the uneasiness one usually feels while visiting in a foreign country."

Common Cause compares funds

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Common Cause, a national nonpartisan citizens' organization, issued a report Wednesday that indicated Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., received more than 30 times as much in campaign contributions as his Republican opponent, Wayne H. Babbitt of North Little Rock.

The report also lists contributions and expenditures of the state's congressional candidates. It reflects contributions through Sept. 1.

As of Sept. 1, McClellan reports receiving more than $800,000 in campaign contributions as opposed to about $15,000 reported by Babbitt. McClellan reported spending more than $490,000, including about $250,000 on communications media, as against Babbitt's reported expenditures of $11,855.

It was presumed that most of the senator's money apparently was spent during the Democratic primary since McClellan has made little advertising effort for the general election.

McClellan and his 12 supporting committees report $142,691 in cash on hand as of April 7, the date the federal Election Campaign Act took effect. He so far has refused to divulge the sources of his contributions prior to April 7.

Since that date, the report said, McClellan has raised more than $350,000, including some $160,000 from 252 in-state donors of $101 or more.

An $11,000 contribution from James Noe, owner of KNOE-TV and radio in Monroe, La., and $10,000 from Mrs. Hope Renshaw, a housewife from Hillsborough, Calif., make up a large part of the financial support from 36 contributors who list out-of-state addresses and gave a total of $42,050, according to the Common Cause report.

The senator also received $85,429 in unitemized contributions of $100 or less and $37,000 in the form of two loans, including $2,500 from P. W. Whiteacker, and his own of $35,000.

McClellan reported receiving $28,850 from 16 political committees, including $10,500 from the Business-Industry Political Action Committee, which was founded by the National Association of Manufacturers. He also reported receiving $5,000 from the Committee for Thorough Agricultural Political Education, an affiliate of Associated Milk Producers, Inc.

Some of the other major contributors to McClellan's campaign, as listed by Common Cause, included Mrs. William Borlaugh, $5,000; Mrs. Elizabeth Broom, $5,000; Robert W. Decker, a vice president at General Motors, $500; R. T. Stevens, a New York banker, $550; Joseph B. Smith, president of Warner Bros. Records, $250; W. J. Echols, a Fort Smith banker, $3,500; Sam Sicard, a Fort Smith banker, $2,000.

The report said Babbitt received $9,000 of his total of $15,176 in campaign contributions from former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller. He reported $3,220 cash on hand as of April 7 and has not disclosed the sources of that amount.

Babbitt also reports receiving $500 from John R. Sturgis of Arkadelphia and $2,066 in unitemized contributions of $100 for less.

Common Cause reported that more than $66,000 had been contributed to the five congressional candidates in the state.

Rep. Bill Alexander of Osceola, unopposed in the 1st District, reported receiving $615 of which $565 was received prior to April 7.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of the 2nd District, also unopposed, reported no receipts or expenditures.

In the 3rd District, which is the only contested race, Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., reported receipts of $8,969, of which $4,132 was raised before April 7. Since that time, his largest contribution has been $1,000 from the Republican National Congressional Committee.

Guy Hatfield, Hammerschmidt's Democratic opponent, has received $4,114 in contributions, $4,000 of which was received prior to April 7, the report said.

Atty. Gen. Ray Thornton, who won the Democratic nomination in the 4th District, reported receipts of $50,597, of which $28,665 was reported on hand April 7.

Since then, Thornton's largest financial supporter is himself, totaling almost $6,000.

He also received $1,000 each from H. H. Lowe, a dairy farmer; Ellis Fagan, an electrical dealer; the AFL-CIO's Commitee on Political Education, and Business Industry Political Action Committee, an affiliate of the National Association of Manufacturers. Thornton has no Republican opponent.

Sammy Davis Jr. to help Sparks

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. is coming to Little Rock Monday to help with the campaign of Sam Sparks, Republican candidate for state senator from District 3.

Sparks said Tuesday that Davis will hold a news conference shortly after arriving.

At a news conference Tuesday, Sparks said that he would take Davis on a tour of the district and show the black entertainer "some of the problems of the community."

Davis will also attend a reception Monday night for contributors to Sparks' campaign.

Search for Boggs:

Hope turns into frustration

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Hopes continue to turn into frustrations in the search for a light plane missing for nine days with House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs and three other persons aboard.

Four separate sightings were reported Tuesday, but all turned out to be dead-ends, as have all the leads so far in the search which has covered 148,000 square miles of rugged Alaska territory between Anchorage and Juneau, the path of the missing plane.

An electronically equipped HC130 aircraft was crisscrossing the search area throughout the night Wednesday, and two Coast Guard cutters plied the waters of the Alaska coastline.

Search officials were hopeful favorable weather would permit a "maximum search effort" over the northern half of the search area.

The plane has been missing since Oct. 16 with Boggs, 58; Alaska's lone House member, Nick Begich, 40; Begich aide Russell Brown, 37, and the pilot, Don E. Jonz, 38, of Fairbanks.

The exhaustive air, land and search has been expanded to cover a 120-mile-wide area and pilots have logged 1,000 hours in the air in the fruitless hunt.

Hopes were raised momentarily late Tuesday at the report of a debris sighting in the Gulf of Alaska. The crew of a Coast Guard helicopter reported that "pieces of something" sighted about 30 miles offshore near Yakutat, midway between Anchorage and Juneau, turned out to be logs, cardboard boxes and cargo pallets, apparently discarded by a passing ship.

The helicopter was dispatched after a HC130 reported the debris, part of it orange. The missing Cessna 310 was orange and white.

Maj. Henry Stocker, search coordinator, said more than 40 reported sightings have been investigated since the exhaustive search began. All have come to nothing.

Crowds sea life

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — More than 180,000 persons, representing 41 states and 6 countries, visited Seven Seas sealife park in the first 50 days of operation.

"We have sold 417,000 cold drinks, 117,000 hot dogs and nearly 80,000 ice cream bars," said Hollis Packard, general manager of the $10 million city-owned facility.

Prize shared

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The last of the 1972 Nobel prizes, for Economics, was awarded today jointly to an American and Briton, Kenneth J. Arrow of Harvard and Sir John Hicks of Oxford; for their "pioneering contribution to general equilibrium theory and welfare theory," the Swedish Academy of Science announced.

The economics prize was first awarded in 1969, and two of the three previous ones went to Americans. This year the Nobel awards are worth $88,189 each, and Arrow and Hicks will divide that sum equally.

Eight of the 11 Nobel laureates this year are Americans, and three of the scientific winners are from Rockefeller University.

The United States made a clean sweep of the Chemistry and Physics prizes, with three American scientists dividing each, while an American split the prize for Medicine with a Briton.

The Peace prize is not being given this year, and the prize for Literature went to novelist Heinrich Boll of West Germany.

Bugging case --

the fund to finance an undercover operation aimed at discrediting Democratic candidates.

Meantime, Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst told newsmen Tuesday that the Justice Department has no "credible evidence" that federal laws were violated by the alleged acts of sabotage and that he feels no probe of the allegations is warranted.

Kleindienst told newsmen: "Get the evidence to me that would indicate that a specific person has violated a specific criminal law, and my department will investigate it."

He was asked whether the department has questioned Donald H. Segretti, identified by the Post and other publications as one of the GOP sabotage agents. "I really don't know. I don't know if they should or not," the attorney general replied.

There were these other developments Tuesday:

—An aide to a Republican state legislative candidate in Florida said she was recruited by a Republican to spy on Democrats, the Tampa Times reported. Patricia Griffin said she was hired by Robert Benz, who has been linked with Segretti in published reports.

—Frank Mankiewicz, campaign coordinator for Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern, made public a letter to Kleindienst demanding an "immediate and comprehensive investigation and prosecution" of 13 charges of improper campaign fund solicitations and failure to disclose funds by Nixon's campaign organization. Kleindienst said he hadn't seen the letter, but said the department will investigate if there is evidence of wrongdoing.

—Sen. Robert Dole, GOP national chairman, in a speech to Maryland Republican leaders, criticized The Washington Post's reporting of the Watergate investigations. Dole said: "The goal of the Post operations is clear: to diminish so far as possible the enormous gap between Mr. McGovern and the President." A Post spokesman said they would have no immediate comment.

JERRY DUKE

Program on Act 1 at Kiwanis Club

Jerry Duke, a representative of Missouri Pacific Railroad, appeared before the Hope Kiwanis Club at their Tuesday meeting on a program arranged by Kiwanian George Wright, Jr.

After his opening remarks he showed a film strip with taped commentary, giving the railroad's position on Act I which will appear on the November 7th General Election Ballot.

According to Duke, Arkansas is the only remaining state with a so-called Full Crew Law on its books. According to Duke, if Act I passes and the Full Crew Law is repealed, no employe of Arkansas railroads will lose his job, be demoted, lose any of his job benefits, or be forced to move to another location in order to hold his job, these provisions being a part of the act itself.

After completion of the film strip, Duke, Tom Selover, and W.T. Ray, also with Missouri Pacific, opened the meeting for questions. Members of the Kiwanis Club were not bashful in their questioning. In fact, at one point the meeting took on the color and nature of a court room rather than that of a civic club, but all questions were answered, whether to the satisfaction of the questioner or not.

Other guests at Tuesday's meeting were J.A. Moody, a visiting Kiwanian from Hobbs, N.M., Wayne Babbitt, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate and one of his aides, Phil Barton; Jimmy Wallace, new Minister of Music at Unity Baptist Church, Truett Goatcher, math consultant state Department of Education, and Key Clubbers David Huddleston and Mike Waters.

People in the News

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Jacqueline Onassis will not participate in a whistle-stop train tour with Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., because the trip was publicized as her first public campaign activity since the death of President John F. Kennedy.

Nancy Tuckerman, a spokesman for Mrs. Onassis, said Pell had invited Mrs. Onassis to join him on a train sweep of Rhode Island on Saturday in behalf of his campaign.

Mrs. Onassis was to make the trip with Pell "just as sort of a friend" and not for campaign purposes, Miss Tuckerman said. But then the trip was publicized as a campaign program.

ASTRO·GRAPH

BY BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, Oct. 25

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY A year of intriguing possibilities. Your income is likely to come from two sources. Something you've worked on a long time takes on fresh potential.

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 19): Projects involving partnerships can get a quick boost off the launching pad. Agreements, contracts can be smoothed to your satisfaction.

TAURUS (Apr 20-May 20): Ideas now put into action gain ground and profit. Strike while the iron is hot.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Not a day to stay at home. interesting new contacts can be made to enlarge your circle of friends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Using your active imagination, you can make interesting modifications for the home, delighting yourself and family.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): A cherised hope is within your grasp. Some travel could be involved. It will be interesting and pleasurable.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): Unusual conditions are at work. They look like they'll benefit you financially. Be alert for new opportunities.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 23): Situations you may have felt to be in the future are closer than you realize. Unexpected events bring them favorably nearer.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22): Some maneuvering going on behind the scenes holds secret benefits. Advantages come quite unexpectedly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec. 21): Friends play a prominent role in your affairs today. They have your best interests at heart.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 19): You've impressed others more than you think. An unsual chain of events enhances your image.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 19): Your vision and foresight is particularly active. Your ideas have speculative possibilities.

PISCES (Feb 20-Mar 20): Some unique conditions are shifting to favor you. Finances could get a shot in the arm.

Trying to keep Texas Democratic

CHILDRESS, Tex. (AP) — Criticizing "turncoat" Democrats and "superpatriots who have neer been near a bullet in their lives," Sargent Shriver is pushing hard to keep Texas Democratic.

Campaigning from Chicago and Kansas City and into Texas with his wife, Eunice, the Democratic vice presidential candidate gave a series of political pep-talks, defended his running mate's positions, condemned what he called Republican "smears and lies" and said Richard Nixon is close to turning the executive mansion into "the black house."

In Chicago, Shriver paraded through the Loop with Mayor Richard J. Daley, who exhorted his precinct captains to work hard for the national ticket in what he called "a most unusual year, a most unusual election."

In the Texas Panhandle town of Childress, which hadn't seen a national candidate since Franklin Roosevelt campaigned there in 1932, a crowd stood and roared its approval when the candidate's wife reminded them her brother, President John F. Kennedy, carried Texas in 1960.

"We want Eunice," they chanted after Shriver had spoken. And for the first time in the campaign Mrs. Shriver added her words to those of her husband on the same platform.

"I can recall asking my brother in 1962 how he'd like to be remembered in history," she said, and quoted President Kennedy: "'I'd really like to be remembered as a good man.'"

"And I think he really was," she said, and the cheering crowd drowned out her words.

Mrs. Shriver said her brother and her husband helped create the Peace Corps, the VISTA voolunteers, the Job Corps and other programs.

"We can head the country in the direction of preserving family life—helping children, helping the unemployed and all the things my husband outlined. But we must get out and work," she said.

Childress County has only about 5,400 residents. Local police said there were about 600 persons in the hall where Shriver was introduced by Texas Gov. Preston Smith.

Later, in a series of television interviews, Shriver called President Nixon "a bust in foreign policy" and said that under him the nation has become "isolated, disliked and despised abroad."

He attacked again what he called the pattern of force emerging in the Nixon administration as an outgrowth of the Watergate case.

"The American people are going to tell the President," he said, "'Youdidn't come clean

COMPLETE GOLF BOOK

CANOGA PARK, Calif. (AP) — The year book and almanac called Golf and published by International Golfer, Canoga Park, Calif., is a bit late to be called a 1972 annual, yet is it one of the most complete golf record books ever published. It contains the records of most of the men and ladies' pros on two golf tours.

The 528-page reference and record book sells for $4.95.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Viruses cause common warts

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Did you once comment on warts caused by a virus? One mother whose child has warts laughed at the idea. I must have mislaid the article so could you please tell me if this is correct?

Dear Reader — You can have the last laugh on your friend. Any competent dermatologist will tell you that all common warts are caused by a virus. They probably belong to a single species of viruses called the papovavirus.

This doesn't mean they are contagious or will spread from one child to another so don't worry about that. Most of the common warts that appear on the hands and arms and sometimes the face will have a normal life span of about one year. This is an important thought to keep in mind in evaluating any form of treatment. There are several different forms of treatments that doctors use, but usually this is not simply cutting them out. That can cause infections and since the wart is a virus infection this usually means it comes right back. For this reason doctors often use liquid nitrogen to freeze the wart and then lift it out or electrodissection or other measures.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Why is sugar so detrimental to weight loss? I am an English mother visiting her daughter. My stay has been prolonged by various health problems and I am no longer young. A cup of tea means so much to me. Having tried various sweeteners on the market with tea, I would rather go without. I have failed in so many attempts to lose weight.

Dear Reader — One level teaspoon of sugar contains about 16 calories and only enough energy to walk about a quarter of a mile. The reason people have difficulty losing weight isn't because they use sugar, eat bread or fat meat, but because they eat too much of everything. Sugar does have a lot of calories per weight because it contains little water and no roughage.

If you want to lose weight, though, you should follow a consistent pattern for months directed toward cutting down on excess fats, foods containing flour and sweets or sugar. This helps get rid of the foods that are the richest in calories and lowest in bulk. For a person whose weight is stable a reasonable decrease in calories followed regularly will usually do the trick. Most people tire of their diets and don't stay on them long enough to get effective results, or they go on crash diets that their health can't tolerate any great length of time.

Some people who do not like artificial sweeteners use half sugar and half sweeteners. This is particularly easy to do with the artificial sweeteners that are granulated powders. These are usually packaged so that one teaspoonful of artificial sweetener is equivalent to one teaspoonful of sugar. This eliminates half of the calories that you would normally get from sugar but still improves the flavor according to many people's tasters.

Election '72:

The 'landslide psychology'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Looming large in President Nixon's campaign these days is the "landslide psychology."

Translated into Nixon's terms, that means Republican satisfaction in the face of polls indicating an easy win might prompt many supporters to stay home on Nov. 7, figuring why bother?"

By the same token, the Democratic opposition led by Presidential nominee George McGovern hopes general apathy may allow its troops to turn out in force and accomplish the biggest political upset since former President Harry Truman bested Republican challenger Thomas E. Dewey in 1948.

The Truman victory was such a surprise that the chief of the U.S. Secret Service found himself at Dewey's home on election night, ready to protect the man he believed would be the next president. Truman quickly found himself a new Secret Service chief.

Nixon, at his most recent press conference, last month, said flatly that the biggest problem he faced in his campaign was to turn out the pro-Nixon vote.

Just this Tuesday, talking informally to Republican campaign chiefs from 11 states from Maine to Maryland, he voiced his misgivings anew.

The scene was the Pocantico Hills, N.Y., home of Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

"The election," said Nixon, "is only two weeks away Some theories are that voters change a great deal in the last two weeks and others are that they really don't change that much, it is only that the pollsters don't poll late enough and find out that a change has already started. But that doesn't make any difference.

"What I am saying here to you now is the vital importance to get out the vote, to get it out up and down the line

What we are ... finding all over the country this year is that people are not just thinking in terms of voting party.

"We do find, as a matter of fact, less defection from the Republican line than in any election in recent history," Nixon said. "But, on the other hand, we find more Democrats at the present time will cross over and vote at the top of the ticket for us than ever before. That can help everybody.

"The point that I make is: Let's keep as our goal, of course, getting out our own vote. Let's also recognize the vital importance of having a big vote, because we must remember that, when there are indications that one candidate is ahead of another, the candidate who is behind tends to have his vote come out in greater numbers than the one who is ahead."

BODY EXHUMED

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The body of Dr. Stephen D. McMillion was exhumed Tuesday to establish the exact cause of death and amend his death certificate accordingly.

McMillion, a North Little Rock physician, died in a Little Rock hospital in 1971 of what at the time was said to be natural causes.

McGovern says Nixon decision will help Demos

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sen. George McGovern said today he believes the issues of corruption and war—even if President Nixon ends the conflict—will "tip this election" and put the Democratic challenger in the White House.

McGovern again said it doesn't matter whether he or Nixon gains as a result of any pre-election settlement, and repeated that it should help him election day.

He had said Tuesday night that "I don't give a damn" about the political impact of a settlement.

McGovern's remarks today were in a television interview.

The Democratic presidential nominee said whether or not Nixon ends the war, "No matter what he does, it ought to help me...." He said Nixon should have ended the war four years ago.

McGovern denied that he was seeking in advance to blunt the political effect should Nixon settle the conflict before the election 13 days hence.

McGovern's statement Tuesday was reminiscent of one by candidate Nixon four years ago when a Democratic president announced a bombing pause and broadened peace talks just before the election. McGovern said he would applaud Nixon if the President ended the war but added that Americans shouldn't forget "he kept it going needlessly for another four years"

McGovern also said he thinks his campaign and his opposition to the war "probably forced Mr. Nixon to do something that he didn't want to do" in trying to end the conflict.

In speeches, rallies and television appearances, McGovern said that Nixon can get no settlement terms now that he could not have had four years ago. McGovern said that is "the tragedy of this whole business of Mr. Kissinger orbiting around the world" in the days before an election.

"Did you make all these sacrifices, Mr. Nixon, to save your own political face from right-wing criticism?" McGovern said at a rally on the rainy steps of the Dayton, Ohio, courthouse.

"Ending the war is not going to be interpreted by intelligent voters as a reason to support Mr. Nixon because it would mean that he simply has done something I've been advocating for many years," McGovern said later.

In it all, there was an echo of what happened four years ago, when Nixon was campaigning against then-Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Amid speculation that President Lyndon B. Johnson was about to halt bombing of North Vietnam, Nixon said in Johnstown, Pa., on Oct. 17, 1968, that, if the move would enhance peace prospects without endangering American lives, "then we are for it."

Tuesday night, McGovern was asked how he feels his presidential chances would be affected by a peace settlement.

"The point is that I don't give a damn," he said. "I think it's irrelevant how it affects me. I don't care what it does to my election—I want to end that war no matter whether it helps Nixon, whether it helps me."

What to do with a bomb

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — In the world of bureaucracy, there is a form to fill out on everything, even a bomb threat.

Employes of the Sacramento County Welfare Department have been given a three-page set of instructions on what to do if someone telephones a bomb threat to the office.

When talking to the person who says the office is going to be blown up, employes are asked to fill out this form:

1. Time the call was received and concluded.
2. Exact words used to make the threat.
3. When the bomb is set to explode.
4. Where the bomb is located. Address and actual physical location within the building.
5. What kind of bomb? What does it look like? How large is it? What kind of triggering device: pressure, chemical delay, time clock, electrical? Is it composed of liquid chemicals (nitroglycerin) or solids (black powder)?
6. Reason for placing the bomb.
7. Descriptive information relating to the caller and location of call: Male or female, approximate age, speech impediments, accents, language used, background noises, additional remarks.

"The employe should promptly notify the investigation bureau, extension 2221, and provide the above information," the instructions say.

The instructions also have a bit of practical advice.

"The amount of time required for the search will be limited to the amount of time before the alleged detonation, if known."

Yard man leaves kids $100,000 trust fund

DALLAS (AP) — Friends' eyebrows shot up a couple of years back when W. C. Fuller drove around to show them his new Cadillac. It cost him $9,000.

But that was nothing to their astonishment on learning, shortly before his death two weeks ago, that Fuller, a Negro yard man, left a trust fund expected to exceed $100,000 for Negro children from broken homes or orphaned who want to study landscape architecture.

You see, Fuller for three decades had earned his livelihood by mowing grass and clipping hedges for regular customers in Highland Park, an exclusive island city surrounded by Dallas.

Born about 66 years ago in East Texas, he sometimes told them there wasn't much else a black man could do at the time but he didn't object to hard work. While he had relatives, they were never close and he guessed he was just meant to be a loner.

"The main thing about Fuller was that he was honest," said one of his customers. "That's how he got into the yard business. He borrowed a considerable amount of money from a Dallas bank to raise hogs, but the hogs died of cholera and he broke his leg."

Fuller vowed he'd repay the money.

"So he put his leg in a cast and limped around mowing lawns until he paid off every bit of that note," the customer went on. "After that he just saved his money."

George A. Brewer recalled that Fuller might go a year at times before presenting a bill for his services. At his death there were checks for up to $1,600 lying around in the shack he shared with seven dogs—in an area worth a lot of money.

"But he wouldn't move—he said it was his home," Brewer said. "It was located right behind the new Texas Stadium (where the Dallas Cowboys play professional football)."

Fuller, a small man who never lost the limp from his broken leg, always wore blue coveralls and a straw hat at work.

Two years ago he made the rounds and asked his customers to come and look at what he had bought—a brand new Cadillac at the curb outside. He said he paid cash for it. Then he mowed the lawn.

Every Sunday thereafter he donned a suit, a tie and a homburg hat and drove through Highland Park, stopping at each of his "homes" to inspect the lawns and shrubbery.

The customers worried the day that Fuller failed to appear. He never did that before.

"But the first I heard he had been sick was when he rang my doorbell a few weeks later looking like a ghost," said Mrs. Harry Seligson. "He said he had an operation and had come to our home straight from the hospital. He said he was ready to go back to work."

He never recovered, however.

"We knew he was dying," said Brewer, "and by that time he let us know how much money he had accumulated. He wasn't close to his family and wanted it (the money) to go to something that would do some good. The night before he died he called in a lawyer."

Cut out the salty talk around Nelson!

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When Navy Ensign Nelson steps onto the deck, the sailors knock off the salty talk.

Rosemary Nelson has become the first woman officer in the Navy to be assigned a sea-going billet.

When the hospital ship Sanctuary steams out of Hunters Point Naval Shipyard next month, she will be in charge of 30 stewards and three disbursing clerks.

She'll also be the ship's paymaster.

"That could make me very popular or very unpopular, said the pert, 24-year-old brunette from Walla Walla, Wash.

But Miss Nelson, who reported aboard the Sanctuary a week ago, says she doesn't expect a sea of troubles in her new assignment.

"I won't have any problems different from any other young officer," she said. "I'm an officer and I expect my men to follow my orders."

And she says she's not worried about whether she's "saluted and such.

"It's the attitude that counts. A man who is lax on saluting can be a good worker."

But Miss Nelson, who designed her own shipboard work uniform of a long-sleeved white blouse and black slacks, will have more than her men to worry about.

She has donned rubber boots and an oxygen breathing apparatus to fight fires at a damage control school, training which will prepare her for a supervisory role during shipboard emergencies, said her department head, Lt. Harry Wright.

Newsman is free after 21 days

NEWARK (AP) — Newsman Peter Bridge, imprisoned because he balked at grand jury questions about an article he wrote, has walked out of jail after spending 21 days behind bars.

"It feels very good to be out, but I'd do it again if I had to," Bridge said as he left the Essex County Jail Tuesday.

"They didn't yield and I didn't yield. They won in court, I won in the end; we won in the end. They don't seem to believe in freedom of the press," he said of the county prosecutor's office.

The 36-year-old Bridge, released unconditionally by Superior Court Judge James R. Giuliano, was the first newsman jailed since the Supreme Court ruled journalists may not withhold information from grand juries.

In Sacramento, Calif., the author of the federal Freedom of Information Act said he is preparing legislation which would prohibit the jailing of newsmen who refuse to reveal their sources of information.

Bridge of Belleville, N.J., entered jail on Oct. 4, after the Supreme Court refused to overturn his contempt citation.

Bridge had written a story in the now-defunct Evening News of Newark in May which quoted Newark Housing Authority Commissioner Pearl Beatty as saying she was offered a $10,000 bribe to influence her vote for a new authority executive director.

Superior Court Judge H. Curtis Meanor found Bridge in contempt on July 7 and ordered him to jail after Bridge refused to answer five questions by a grand jury investigating the authority.

Bridge claimed many of the questions posed by the grand jury in its investigation of the alleged bribe went beyond the scope of his article and would compromise his freedom of speech.

He and his wife Anne, who was due to give birth to their third child more than two weeks ago, received hundreds of dollars in donations from news organizations.

The Evening News ceased publication five weeks before Bridge entered jail and he was unemployed.

He said the first thing he wants to do now that he's out of jail is spend time with his children, Mark, 11 and Rebecca, 9.

"I also have to get a job," he said.

South bid his hand with all the delicacy of a runaway rhinoceros, but South was an expert playing with an indifferent partner and South decided to take full charge and hope for the best.

The slam was a good one. Against any lead but a spade, South could discard his king of spades on a good diamond and guess in hearts. Against the ace of spades lead and spade continuation, South had at worst a finesse for his contract.

Expert South found a better play and made it on a squeeze.

East covered the second spade as cheaply as he had to. South ruffed and drew trumps, entered dummy with a diamond and led another spade to see if the queen might drop. It didn't, but South was not at all discouraged.

He simply ran off the rest of his trumps leaving himself with three hearts and a diamond. Dummy's last five cards were the jack of spades, a heart and king-queen small of diamonds. West, who had to discard before dummy, was forced to unguard his king of hearts in order to keep dummy's small diamond from being good.

Dummy's small diamond had done its work. South discarded it. Then he cashed dummy's king and queen of diamonds. East had to come down to two cards. He could not throw the queen of spades so he had to discard down to one heart.

This left each defender with just one heart. It didn't matter where the king was. It was sure to fall to South's ace.
